The Nelson Touch

"If a man consults whether he is to fight, when he has the power in his own hands, it is certain that his opinion is against fighting".

Lord Admiral Horatio Nelson

We have the weapons to advance this war. The war is against the farce of democracy and all politicians, all political parties, the financiers and the media. The weapons are those of scorn, ridicule, cartoon, laughter and exposure of them and their corruption. They are not of us. Never were and never will be.

Do you believe that the officers and ratings of Nelson's fleet at the battle of Trafalgar were run "Democratically", or that it was "Rule by Committee" amongst the regiments on Wellington's bloody battlefield at Waterloo?

Those who do so are cretins and deserve everything they get.

Just a few quotations to inspire you from Admiral Lord Nelson who was at sea from the age of 13.

"Desperate affairs require desperate measures."

"First gain the victory and then make the best use of it you can."

"I could not tread these perilous paths in safety, if I did not keep a saving sense of humour."

IF TRAFALGAR SQUARE CAME TO LIFE.

England expects that every man will do his duty

St. George's Day 23rd April

The above cartoon is from a very rare copy of BOB SIEVIER'S Winning Post Annual. (nd. 1924?)

"In honour I gained them, and in honour I will die with them."

"It is warm work; and this day may be the last of us in a moment. But mark you! I would not be elsewhere for thousands." Battle of Copenhagen (1801).

"No Captain can be very wrong if he places his ship alongside that of the enemy."

Heading Our Way...

The Camp of the Saints, by Jean Raspail, was originally published in 1973. The prophetic 'novel' foretells the collapse of Western civilization due to a tidal wave of Third World immigration.

The final stages of this diabolical scheme are being implemented, as you read this, now that the advance guard is so strongly established in Europe. The deliberate actions of the stooges of The Hidden Hand operating inside and outside the borders of sovereign nations are causing complete destabilization, chaos and panic across swathes of the Middle-East and North Africa. (Spreading into Southern Europe). As is intended it will worsen and spread. Israel is sitting pretty for the time being and will be admiring the view on CNN.

The Camp of the Saints is available free to read online at www.jrbooksonline.com.

THE MYSTERIOUS MID-EAST

When an earlier Middle Eastern crisis erupted, our late Editor, Rosine de Bounevalle, suggested that the millions of words espoused by media pundits had done very little to untie the deliberately ravelled strings of international politics. As the so-called "Arab spring" rebellions (which are themselves successors to the "velvet", "orange", phoney revolutions organised in the former "Eastern bloc" by CIA fronts such as Freedom House, continue to be forced from Morocco to the Yemen and as, at the time of writing, NATO missiles and planes pound Gaddafi's installations and forces, the same hidden hands are at work.

Several points, however, are clear to the shrewd observer. First, as Daily Telegraph reader Tony Iveson pointed out on March 23, removing dictators who are doing a good job in suppressing militant Islam is a British speciality. 'We' toppled Saddam and now 'we' are trying to topple Gaddafi, which if successful, will create a vacuum that may well be filled by a jihadist regime hostile to 'Western' interests. Going in with heavy air strikes and/or troops on the ground will serve only to antagonise the Arab world. The Arabs have a tradition of strong, stable dictators who will do the job of holding their diverse peoples together and holding the most aggressive forms of militant Islam in check more effectively than any number of missile attacks ordered by the sanctimonious leaders of the USA, Britain and France. The Independent's Kevin Myers noted that what all the Arab hot spots have in common is that riots usually started after prayers at the mosque, with the one unifying cry of "Allah Akbar".

So is a post-Gaddafi Libya to become a NATO protectorate like Islamic Kosovo? Very recently Gaddafi was being courted with billions in sales of weapons and aircraft (Not so good that 'we' could not destroy them. Ed.) Yet now he is demonised and cast as a pariah for using force against those who have sought to de-stabilise his disparate country. Nightly television news broadcasts show him ranting from a Tripoli balcony, rather like Emmanuel Goldstein's image appeared on Oceania's screens as part of the nation's daily "two minutes of hate" in George Orwell's 1984.

It has yet to become clear what his cardinal sin is in the eyes of those who manipulate and supervise world policy, compared with the rulers of Bahrain or Saudi Arabia or Yemen, who have used military action against unarmed civilians.

Then there is the "elephant" in the room. Why has Israel not suffered international opprobrium and military sanctions for its ritualistic bloody devastating attacks, without UN sanction, on innocent civilians in all of Palestine?

The only regime changes needed are obvious.

Think about it....

Hard.

IF.....

If you can keep your head when all about you
Are losing theirs and blaming it on you,
If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you,
But make allowance for their doubting too;
If you can wait and not be tired by waiting,
Or being lied about, don't deal in lies,
Or being hated, don't give way to hating,
And yet don't look too good, nor talk too wise:

If you can dream - and not make dreams your master;
If you can think - and not make thoughts your aim;
If you can meet with Triumph and Disaster
And treat those two imposters just the same;
If you can bear to hear the truth you've spoken
Twisted by knaves to make a trap for fools,
Or watch the things you gave your life to, broken,
And stoop and build 'em up with worn-out tools:

If you can make one heap of all your winnings
And risk it on one turn of pitch-and-toss,
And lose, and start again at your beginnings
And never breathe a word about your loss;
If you can force your heart and nerve and sinew
To serve your turn long after they are gone,
And so hold on when there is nothing in you
Except the Will which says to them: 'Hold on!'

If you can talk with crowds and keep your virtue,
Or walk with kings - nor lose the common touch,
If neither foes nor loving friends can hurt you,
If all men count with you, but none too much;
If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds' worth of distance run,
Yours is the earth and everything that's in it,
And - which is more - you'll be a Man, my son!

Leaderless Resistance

By Louis Beam
Former US Special Forces
White Nationalist and Patriot

Greetings,

I read A.K. Chesterton way back in the early 1970's. He was a great enduring fighter for our folk. You have my blessings and best wishes for your good effort.

Louis Beam.

(email received by your Editor 12/3/11).

www.louisbeam.com

The concept of leaderless resistance was proposed by Col. Ulius Louis Amoss, who was the founder of International Service of Information Incorporated, located in Baltimore, Maryland. During his life he was a tireless opponent of Communism, as well as a skilled Intelligence Officer.

Col. Amoss first wrote of Leaderless Resistance on April 17, 1962. His theories of organization were primarily directed against the threat of eventual Communist takeover in the United States. The present writer, with the benefit of having lived many years beyond Col. Amoss, has taken his theories and expounded on them.

Col. Amoss feared the Communists. This author fears the Federal government. Communism now represents a threat to no one in the United States, while Federal tyranny represents a threat to EVERYONE. The writer has joyfully lived long enough to see the dying breaths of communism, but may, unhappily, remain long enough to see the last dying gasps of freedom in America.

In the hope that, somehow, America can still produce the brave sons and daughters necessary to fight off ever-increasing persecution and oppression, this essay is offered. Frankly, it is too close to call at this point. Those who love liberty, and believe in freedom enough to fight for it, are rare today, but within the bosom of every once great nation, there remains secreted the pearls of former greatness. They are there. I have looked into their sparkling eyes; sharing a brief moment in time with them as I passed through this life. Relished their friendship, endured their pain, and they mine. We are a band of brothers, native to the soil, gaining strength one from another as we have rushed headlong into a battle that all the weaker, timid men, say we cannot win. Perhaps not... but then again, perhaps we can. It's not over till the last freedom fighter is buried or imprisoned, or the same happens to those who would destroy their freedom.

Barring any cataclysmic events, the struggle will yet go on for years. The passage of time will make it clear to even the more slow among us that the government is the foremost threat to the life and liberty of the folk. The government will no doubt make today's oppressiveness look like grade school work compared to what they have planned in the future. Meanwhile, there are those of us who continue to hope that somehow the few can do what the many have not.

We are cognizant that before things get better they will certainly get worse as government shows a willingness to use ever more severe police state measures against dissidents. This changing situation makes it clear that those who oppose state repression must be prepared to alter, adapt, and modify their behavior, strategy, and tactics as circumstances warrant. Failure to consider new methods and implement them as necessary will make the government's efforts at suppression uncomplicated. It is the duty of every patriot to make the tyrant's life miserable. When one fails to do so he not only fails himself, but his people.

With this in mind, current methods of resistance to tyranny employed by those who love our race, culture, and heritage must pass a litmus test of soundness. Methods must be objectively measured as to their effectiveness, as well as to whether they make the government's intention of repression more possible or more difficult. Those not working to aid our objectives must be discarded, or the government benefits from our failure to do so.

As honest men who have banded together into groups or associations of a political or religious nature are falsely labeled "domestic terrorists" or "cultists" and suppressed, it will become necessary to consider other methods of organization, or as the case may very well call for: non-organization. One should keep in mind that it is not in the government's interest to eliminate all groups. Some few must remain in order to perpetuate the smoke and mirrors vision for the masses that America is a "free democratic country" where dissent is allowed. Most organizations, however, that possess the potential for effective resistance will not be allowed to continue. Anyone who is so naive as to believe the most powerful government on earth will not crush any who pose a real threat to that power, should not be active, but rather at home studying political history.

The question as to who is to be left alone and who is not, will be answered by how groups and individuals deal with several factors such as: avoidance of conspiracy plots, rejection of feeble minded malcontents, insistence upon quality of the participants, avoidance of all contact with the front men for the federals - the news media - and finally, camouflage (which can be defined as the ability to blend in the public's eye the more committed groups of resistance with mainstream "kosher" associations that are generally seen as harmless). Primarily though, whether any organization is allowed to continue in the future will be a matter of how big a threat a group represents. Not a threat in terms of armed might or political ability, for there is none of either for the present, but rather, threat in terms of potentiality. It is potential the federals fear most. Whether that potential exists in an individual or group is incidental. The federals measure potential threat in terms of what might happen given a situation conducive to action on the part of a resistive organization or individual. Accurate intelligence gathering allows them to assess the potential. Showing one's hand before the bets are made is a sure way to lose.

The movement for freedom is rapidly approaching the point where, for many people, the option of belonging to a group will be non-existent. For others group membership will be a viable option for only the immediate future. Eventually, and perhaps much sooner than most believe possible, the price paid for membership will exceed any perceived benefit. But for now, some of the groups that do exist often serve a useful purpose either for the newcomer who can be indoctrinated into the ideology of the struggle, or for generating positive propaganda to reach potential freedom fighters. It is sure that, for the most part, this struggle is rapidly becoming a matter of individual action, each of its participants making a private decision in the quietness of his heart to resist: to resist by any means necessary.

It is hard to know what others will do, for no man truly knows another man's heart. It is enough to know what one himself will do. A great teacher once said "know thyself." Few men really do, but let each of us promise ourselves not to go quietly to the fate our would be masters have planned.

The concept of leaderless resistance is nothing less than a fundamental departure in theories of organization. The orthodox scheme or organization is diagrammatically represented by the pyramid, with the mass at the bottom and the leader at the top. This fundamental of organization is to be seen not only in armies, which are, of course, the best illustration of the pyramid structure, with the mass of soldiery (the privates) at the bottom responsible to sergeants, and so on up the entire chain of command to the generals at the top. But the same structure is seen in corporations, ladies' garden clubs, and in our political system itself. This orthodox "pyramid" scheme of organization is to be seen basically in all existing political, social, and religious structures in the world today, from the Federal government to the Roman Catholic Church.

The Constitution of the United States, in the wisdom of the Founders, tried to sublimate the essential dictatorial nature of pyramidal organization by dividing authority into three: executive, legislative, and judicial. But the pyramid remains essentially untouched.

This scheme of organization, the pyramid, is not only useless, but extremely dangerous for the participants when it is utilized in a resistance movement against state tyranny. Especially is this so in technologically advanced societies where electronic surveillance can often penetrate the structure, thus revealing its chain of command. Experience has revealed over and over again that anti-state political organizations utilizing this method of command and control are easy prey for government infiltration, entrapment, and destruction of the personnel involved. This has been seen repeatedly in the United States where pro-government infiltrators or agent provocateurs weasel their way into patriotic groups and destroy them from within.

In the pyramid of organization, an infiltrator can destroy anything which is beneath his level of infiltration, and often those above his as well. If the traitor has infiltrated at the top, then the entire organization from the top down is compromised and may be traduced at will.

An alternative to the pyramid type of organization is the cell system. In the past, many political groups (both right and left) have used the cell system to further their objectives. Two examples will suffice. During the American revolution "committees of correspondence" were formed throughout the Thirteen colonies.

Their purpose was to subvert the government and thereby aid the cause of independence. The "Sons of Liberty", who made a name for themselves dumping government taxed tea into the harbour at Boston, were the action arm of the committees of correspondence. Each committee was a secret cell that operated totally independently of the other cells. Information on the government was passed from committee to committee, from colony to colony, and then acted upon on a local basis. Yet even in those bygone days of poor communication, of weeks to months for a letter to be delivered, the committees without any central direction whatsoever, were remarkably similar in the tactics they employed to resist government tyranny. It was, as the first American patriots knew, totally unnecessary for anyone to give an order for anything. Information was made available to each committee, and each committee acted as it saw fit.

A recent example of the cell system taken from the left wing of politics are the Communists. The Communists, in order to get around the obvious problems involved in pyramidal organization, developed to an art the cell system. They had numerous independent cells which operated completely isolated from one another and particularly with no knowledge of each other, but were orchestrated together by a central headquarters. For instance, during WWII, in Washington, it is known that there were at least six secret Communist cells operating at high levels in the United States government (plus all the open Communists who were protected and promoted by President Roosevelt). However, only one of the cells was rooted out and destroyed. How many more actually were operating, no one can say for sure.

The Communist cells which operated in the U.S. until late 1991 under Soviet control could have had at their command a leader who held a social position which appeared to be very lowly. He could be, for example, a busboy in a restaurant, but in reality a colonel or a general in the Soviet Secret Service, the KGB. Under him could be a number of cells; and a person active in one cell would almost never have knowledge of individuals who were active in other cells, in fact, the members of the other cells would be supporting that cell which was under attack and ordinarily would lend very strong support to it in many ways. This is at least part of the reason, no doubt, that whenever in the past Communists were attacked in this country, support for them sprang up in many unexpected places.

The effective and efficient operation of a cell system after the Communist model is, of course, dependent upon central direction, which means impressive organization, funding from the top, and outside support, all of which the Communists had. Obviously, American patriots have none of these things at the top or anywhere else, and so an effective cell organization based upon the Soviet system of operation is impossible.

Two things become clear from the above discussion. First, that the pyramid form of organization can be penetrated quite easily and it thus is not a sound method of organization in situations where the government has the resources and desire to penetrate the structure, which is the situation in this country. Secondly, that the normal qualifications for the cell structure based upon the Red model does not exist in the U. S. for patriots. This understood, the question arises "What method is left for those resisting state tyranny"?

The answer comes from Col. Amoss who proposed the "Phantom Cell" mode of organization which he described as Leaderless Resistance. A system of organization that is based upon the cell organization, but does not have any central control or direction, that is in fact almost identical to the methods used by the Committees of Correspondence during the American Revolution. Utilizing the Leaderless Resistance concept, all individuals and groups operate independently of each other, and never report to a central headquarters or a single leader for direction or instruction, as would those who belong to a typical pyramid organization.

At first glance such a type of organization seems unrealistic, primarily because there appears to be no organization. The natural question thus arises as to how are the "Phantom Cells" and individuals to cooperate with each other when there is no intercommunication or central direction? The answer to this question is that participants in a program of Leaderless Resistance through phantom cell or individual action must know exactly what they are doing, and how to do it. It becomes the responsibility of the individual to acquire the necessary skills and information as to what is to be done. This is by no means as impractical as it appears, because it is certainly true that in any movement, all persons involved have the same general outlook, are acquainted with the same philosophy, and generally react to given situations in similar ways. The previous history of the committees of correspondence during the American Revolution show this to be true.

Since the entire purpose of Leaderless Resistance is to defeat state tyranny (at least insofar as this essay is concerned), all members of phantom cells or individuals will tend to react to objective events in the same way through usual tactics of resistance. Organs of information distribution such as newspapers, leaflets, computers, etc., which are widely available to all, keep each person informed of events, allowing for a planned response that will take many variations. No one need issue an order to anyone. Those idealists truly committed to the cause of freedom will act when they feel the time is ripe, or will take their cue from others who precede them. While it is true that much could be said against this type of structure as a method of resistance, it must be kept in mind that Leaderless Resistance is a child of necessity. The alternatives to it have been shown to be unworkable or impractical. Leaderless Resistance has worked before in the American Revolution, and if the truly committed put it to use for themselves, it will work now.

It goes almost without saying that Leaderless Resistance leads to very small or even one man cells of resistance. Those who join organizations to play "let's pretend" or who are "groupies" will quickly be weeded out. While for those who are serious about their opposition to Federal despotism, this is exactly what is desired.

From the point of view of tyrants and would be potentates in the Federal bureaucracy and police agencies, nothing is more desirable than that those who oppose them be UNIFIED in their command structure, and that every person who opposes them belong to a pyramid type group. Such groups and organizations are an easy kill. Especially in light of the fact that the Justice (sic) Department promised in 1987 that there would never be another group that opposed them that they did not have at least one informer in. These Federal "friends of government" are intelligence agents. They gather information that can be used at the whim of a Federal D.A. to prosecute. The line of battle has been drawn. Patriots are required therefore to make a conscious decision to either aid the government in its illegal spying, by continuing with old methods of organization and resistance, or to make the enemy's job more difficult by implementing effective countermeasures.

Now there will, no doubt, be mentally handicapped people out there who, while standing at a podium with an American flag draped in the background, and a lone eagle soaring in the sky above, will state emphatically in their best sounding red, white, and blue voice, "So what if the government is spying? We are not breaking any laws." Such crippled thinking by any serious person is the best example that there is a need for special education classes. The person making such a statement is totally out of contact with political reality in this country, and unfit for leadership of any thing more than a dog sled in the Alaskan wilderness. The old "Born on the fourth of July" mentality that has influenced so much of the American patriot's thinking in the past will not save him from the government in the future. "Re-education" for non-thinkers of this type will take place in the Federal prison system where there are no flags or eagles, but an abundance of men who were "not violating any law."

Most groups who "unify" their disparate associates into a single structure have short political lives. Therefore, those movement leaders constantly calling for unity of organization rather than the desirable unity of purpose, usually fall into one of three categories.

They may not be sound political tacticians, but rather, just committed men who feel unity would help their cause, while not realizing that the government would greatly benefit from such efforts. The Federal objective, to imprison or destroy all who oppose them, is made easier in pyramid organizations.

Or, perhaps, they do not fully understand the struggle they are involved in and that the government they oppose has declared a state of war against those fighting for faith, folk, freedom and constitutional liberty. Those in power will use any means to rid themselves of opposition.

The third class calling for unity, and let us hope this is in the minority of the three, are men more desirous of the supposed power that a large organization would bestow, than of actually achieving their stated purpose.

Conversely, the last thing Federal snoops would have, if they had any choice in the matter, is a thousand different small phantom cells opposing them. It is easy to see why. Such a situation is an intelligence nightmare for a government intent upon knowing everything they possibly can about those who oppose them. The Federals, able to amass overwhelming strength of numbers, manpower, resources, intelligence gathering, and capability at any given time, need only a focal point to direct their anger. A single penetration of a pyramid type of organization can lead to the destruction of the whole. Whereas, Leaderless Resistance presents no single opportunity for the Federals to destroy a significant portion of the Resistance.

With the announcement by the Department of Justice (sic) that 300 FBI agents formerly assigned to watching Soviet spies in the US (domestic counter intelligence) are now to be used to "combat crime", the Federal government is preparing the way for a major assault upon those persons opposed to their policies. Many anti-government groups dedicated to the preservation of the America of our forefathers can expect soon to feel the brunt of a new Federal assault upon liberty.

It is clear, therefore, that it is time to rethink traditional strategy and tactics when it comes to opposing a modern police state. America is quickly moving into a long dark night of police state tyranny, where the rights now accepted by most as being inalienable will disappear. Let the coming night be filled with a thousand points of resistance. Like the fog which forms when conditions are right and disappears when they are not, so must the resistance to tyranny be.

"If every person has the right to defend - even by force - his person, his liberty, and his property, then it follows that a group of men have the right to organize and support a common force to protect these rights constantly." The Law. Frederick Bastiat. Paris. 1850.

A HUE & CRY! By Colin Todd.

A very few years ago near where I live I was walking with, a then middle-aged Cassius, in the street when a shout went up, followed by a roar. A burglar had been spotted in someone's back garden coming out of a house. Men with garden tools appeared as did their dogs. (We have a lot of dogs here!). My right shank is held together with rods and screws so I let big deaf (instinct is all!) Cassius off the leash and followed on. By the time I got there it was over. A dozen dogs were playing together and the men shaking hands. The 'victim'? Let us not dwell on that. Crime dropped in this area. Nobody called the police but they know about it. It was never officially reported to my knowledge. There is still a nod and wink about it hereabouts. If you cried for help who would come to your aid with a pick-axe handle and their dog? Strong communities are built organically. Not by the State and their Health & Safety stooges in yellow jackets or pretend policemen.

Common Law or Hutesium et clamor!

Latin term for the requirement of all members of a village to pursue a criminal with horn and voice. In Anglo-Saxon English, hue and cry!

DEATH OF A CANDOUR PATRIOT

by PRO PATRIA

Marie Grace Endean
(1916-2010)

"I remember sitting in Nesta Webster's drawing room one afternoon in the late 1930s at a gathering of patriots. Captain Ramsay M.P. and Admiral Domville were present, as were several uniformed members of Leese's Fascist league. Some Militant Christian Patriots, too. Then I heard a question put to the speaker by someone at the back with a rather rasping voice. I turned around and, do you know, I saw it was William Joyce."

I recall this and many other anecdotes related by Marie Endean on several visits for afternoon tea to her cottage in Woolhampton, Berkshire. She had lived just down the road from Douai Abbey since leaving London on the outbreak of war in 1939. She was a charming, mild-mannered and very gracious English lady. Nonetheless, she had been involved in the fight for British nationhood for over fifty years in one organisation or another and had known personally just about all the leading figures on the radical right in Britain, from Arnold Leese and Nesta Webster to our own A.K. Chesterton and Rosine de Bouneville.

Born in 1916, Marie was privately educated and went on to take a B.A. (Hons) in English and then an M.A. in Education at London University. She taught in schools, further education colleges and a polytechnic in London and Newbury, and even held a lecturing post at Holloway Gaol for a short spell! Her father was Frederick Endean, a genito-urinary surgeon with a Harley Street practice. A staunch patriot, he ensured she received her political initiation from Arnold Leese. This undoubtedly contributed to the deep understanding of all aspects of the conspiracy against nationhood that she developed and articulated throughout her subsequent years of political writing, speaking and campaigning.

Marie's post-war activities took her into A.K. Chesterton's League of Empire Loyalists and from 1953 she proved to be a regular and generous supporter of Candour.

Always keen to find avenues for influencing people of potentially patriotic persuasion, she persevered with her membership of Conservative branches in Berkshire, General Hilton's 'True Tories' and for the last forty years most of the anti-Common Market resistance groups. It was in the last forum that she derived most satisfaction, I think. For years she was Secretary and principal moving spirit behind the Newbury & District Anti-Common Market, Referendum and then Safeguard Britain Campaigns.

Other activities included writing articles on current affairs for the distributist journal, The Defendant, translating the writings of Vicomte Leon de Poncins and the Rev. Dr. Denis Fahey, and seeking to influence a nucleus of informed Catholic graduates via the Reading Newman Circle. At times, perhaps, her approach seemed rather too 'respectable' for A.K. and Rosine, but Marie always maintained that the Catholic and Tory mentalities would not yield to direct and open assault. Rather, she thought it wiser in the long run to proceed slowly and surely. She lamented this aspect of realpolitik, but nevertheless felt it was the pragmatic way forward.

In one of Marie's letters to A.K. Chesterton, she paid fulsome tribute to the "brilliance and accuracy of (his) interpretation of world politics and the superb courage" with which he was doing it. It is my privilege to offer similar tribute to Marie Grace Endean. Her personal and political courage were of the highest order. As the darkness of our traditional enemies' treachery deepens, so it must be our privilege and duty to carry on the work to which Marie dedicated her life.

CATHOLICS AND FREEMASONRY

By Marie Endean

(Written in 1983)

"So you see, old chap, you needn't worry about joining us. We Masons are more a society with secrets than a secret society. None of your continental cloak and dagger stuff here. We are a benevolent association. Looking after our widows and orphans: that, surely, is a Christian aim. In the Lodge you enjoy a good social life, friendship, deepening knowledge and, of course, useful business contacts.

"Anyway, your Roman Church is much more open to ideas these days. All you have to do now is to ask your parish priest for permission to join. The blanket ban on Freemasonry has gone, so your Church can't think it will do you much harm."

What is a Catholic to think of such recruiting talk? Untypical, according to the official Masonic line, but talk that is certainly going on in our parishes. Invitations to join are by friendly word of mouth, potential candidates being carefully vetted and their usefulness finely calculated. Nothing emanating from a Lodge is casual.

No fewer than eleven Popes have condemned Freemasonry since its reorganisation in the 18th century so, obviously, a candidate must take a long hard look at the meaning and history of the Craft. He must ponder the objections voiced by many other Churches too, notably the Greek Orthodox Church, the Irish and Scottish Presbyterian Churches, the Orthodox Presbyterian Church of the U.S.A., many Lutheran Churches both in Europe and the U.S.A., and by other religious bodies such as the English Methodists and the Salvation Army. Last, and perhaps most important of all, by concerned clergymen and laymen in the Church of England, many having an intimate knowledge of Freemasonry. (1)

He will come to one stark conclusion. In the words of Rev. Walton Hannah, "No church that has seriously investigated the religious teachings and implications of Freemasonry has yet failed to condemn it." (2)

Why is this? Because the message of Freemasonry is that man is never closer to God than when he kneels, spiritually naked, at the altar of Masonry. W. L. Wilmhurst, a Masonic authority, puts the point succinctly: in his The Masonic Initiation he writes "It is well for a man to be born in a Church but it is a terrible thing for him to die in one... There should have been growth."

"The Lodge is 'holy ground' where 'growth' is promised the candidate via the secrets, mysteries, ancient usages and established customs of the Order. Growth will be vouchsafed him only according to merit and ability. Such is the ineffable truth to be revealed to him by degrees that he must guard on pain of having his throat cut across, his tongue torn out by the root, his body buried in the sand of the sea at low water mark, or a cable's length from the shore... This pledge of fidelity he must seal with his lips on the Volume of the Sacred Law".

An oath both rash and vain; in effect, the signing of a blank cheque payable to unknown superiors.

The irony of it all is that the secrets of both Blue and Red Masonry have long been discovered and traced back into history, far beyond the year 1717 when the Grand Lodge of England was constituted.

In all branches of Masonry the ultimate secret of the Craft is Pantheism, the denial of the transcendent God. Instead, there is deified Man, the highest self-manifestation of the so-called World Soul which is supposed to be working itself out through the process of historical development. As the Tempter prompted, "Ye shall be as Gods."

Typical of the befuddled theology induced by Masonic brainwashing is the following "hymn":
"Bacchus died and rose again,
On the golden Syrian Plain,
Osiris rose from out of his grave,

And thereby mankind did save;
Adonis likewise shed his blood
By the yellow Syrian flood,

Mithra from his cave of earth,
And we today in Christian lands
We with them can join hands." (3)

Ecumenism with a vengeance!

How is it, then, that the Church's revised Canon Law no longer automatically bars Catholics from membership of Masonic groups? Does this mean that the Church is soft-peddalling the menace of Freemasonry?

A leading Masonic spokesman, Worshipful Brother Harry Carr thinks so. In his The Freemason At Work (London 1976) he concludes that "the advent of the Second Ecumenical Council brought the winds of change into matters of religion."

In England it certainly has meant an unsatisfactory devolution of responsibility to the individual Catholic. In a Statement issued in 1974 the Roman Catholic Bishops in England and Wales enjoined Catholics to regard themselves first and foremost as members of the Church, but this was followed by an extraordinary let out. If a Catholic "sincerely believes" that membership of Freemasonry does not conflict with the deeper loyalty, he should approach his bishop through his parish priest to discuss the implications of such membership.

However, here's the rub: just when, as never before, Catholic laymen need to know about Freemasonry and its pitfalls they have been deprived of readily accessible means of learning about the Craft and papal warnings. In the early 1970s, thanks to importuning by Brother Harry Carr, the late Cardinal Heenan was prevailed upon to bring pressure to bear on the Catholic Truth Society to withdraw its pamphlets exposing Freemasonry. Since then there has been official silence on the subject.

So, unless they know where to look for dependable information, most busy Catholic laymen, some parish priests or, for that matter, some bishops, are sitting birds for Masonic propaganda and deception.

We can take some comfort from the fact that the revised Canon Law lays down that priests, religious and members of Secular Institutes are still forbidden by the universal law of the Church to accept membership of the Masonic Order or similar organisations. But surely, what is poison for the goose is poison for the gander. Why should the layman be exposed to the temptations and dangers of Masonic proselytising when it is so difficult for him to know whether the Lodge in his area is hostile to the Church or not? More difficult still for him to find out whether the Lodge itself has been penetrated by even more subversive influences, such as Illuminism as has so often happened in the past.

In fine, the Catholic layman has been virtually disarmed at a critical time in our Christian civilisation when so many of the ideas and long-declared aims of Red Masonry are being fulfilled in this country and throughout the world.

Editor's note: In the year Marie wrote this article the traditional position of the Church was reiterated in the revised Code of Canon Law, as Marie admits, on the basis that Freemasonry is a naturalistic religion that excludes Christ and requires its members to swear to oaths extorted by deceit, force or grave fear. Catholics who retain Craft membership are in a state of objectively grave sin and must resign from their Lodge. The Catholic Truth Society's 2005 pamphlet, Freemasonry and the Christian Faith, is essential reading.

The Truth Will Out!

KGB plan worked DAILY MAIL 27/1/11

FURTHER to Peter Sissons's enlightening description of Left-wing bias in the BBC (Mail), in the Sixties a couple of friends were involved in the secret service, and I've never forgotten what they told me.

According to them, at the height of the Cold War, their Russian equivalents had decided to make long-term targets of three British institutions: the trades union movement, which they'd already infiltrated from top to bottom, the teaching profession and the BBC.

It seems that though the old USSR and its KGB have disappeared, their plans for the destruction of this country have survived them.

HENRY C. COMBE, Sutton, Surrey.

I'M NOT surprised Peter Sissons encountered a dominant Left-wing culture at the BBC.

After World War II, the Marxist Left looked to new avenues to further their agenda. Antonio Gramsci, the 'father' of euro-communism, argued that a change in ideas preceded economic and political change.

The influential Frankfurt School played a major role in this process, spreading its influence into the academic world (humanities and the social sciences), education and the media. They identified three main obstacles to the Marxist agenda: organised religion, the family and patriotism. Ring any bells?

SEAN BRADLEY, Birdham, Sussex.

ANDREW NEIL laments the passing of working-class politicians from the upper echelons (Mail).

I'm from such a background but find that most politicians who are also from that class soon conform to the parody of The Red Flag:

*'The working class can kiss my a**e; I've got the foreman's job at last'.*

Think of Lords Prescott and Kinnock and several others.

K. A. WESTALL, London NW1.

What a Surprise!

Mahatma Gandhi, the revolting creature so lauded by Marxist Liberal creeps who did their utmost to destroy the British Empire has finally been 'outed', to use queer-speak.

According to the Daily Mail dated 29/3/11, Gandhi was bisexual (which will probably raise his popularity with the liberal intelligensia, many of who are bi-sexual). He left his wife to live with a German-Jewish bodybuilder (I would have to work very hard to make this up! C.T.) called Hermann Kallenbach with whom he had fallen deeply in love (sic).

This from a new biography by Joseph Lelyveld called Great Soul: Mahatma Gandhi And His Struggle With India.

NEXT ISSUE

What a week for Great Britain! Creepy toff Cameron apologising to the world for the British Empire. A "royal" wedding that sounds ever more like a sponsored 'chavs' outing to the old White City dog track. All that seems to be missing is Private Walker, of Dad's Army fame, flogging tat and knicker elastic (and that is probably in short supply in such circles) outside the Abbey. Next issue more on the Mau Mau Compo Case disgrace.

New Title
FRONTKAMPFER

The life story of Gerrit (Et) Wolsink, a Dutch National Socialist, who lived and fought for his ideology from his early teenage years until his death in 1995.

This book traces Et's life from his early years, through his membership of the Dutch NS Movement the NSB; his membership of the Hitler Youth; his wartime service as a junior officer in Division Brandenburg; his transfer in 1944 to the Waffen-SS to serve under the legendary Otto Skorzeny; the collapse of the Third Reich and his involvement in 'Werewolf'; his post-war imprisonment, torture and trials; his 'second chance' in NATO, and his role in the post-war continuation and revival of European National Socialism. Soft cover.

156 pages.

Dear Gordon,

Thank you for the recent cheque. I am sending a mix of publications and 'ads'. I am working on a double-issue at present and will send you a copy when done.

I trust that you are in good health?

There is not much to say about the latest 'nationalist' shennanigans. I am completely independent these days and have been for some ten years but did attend the JT Memorial Meeting in Preston recently and renewed some old contacts.

I shall see what I can do over the Winter evenings in going back through the bound volumes of Candour and looking for North East activities or those of activists from the region on the national stage.

The patriotic struggle in the North East over the decades needs a comprehensive review and much research and I know of no-one better qualified than yourself for the task. Have you a book in mind or a series of articles or is it an archive you are creating? I will place an advertisement in the forthcoming issue for information and forward anything that comes in on to you.

Warmest Regards for a Peaceful Yuletide,

Colin.

P.S. Please note the email and website addresses in the publications.

P.P.S. Are there any independent patriotic groups or publications in the North East? If so I would be interested in hearing about them.
